Medical practices are seeing a change in the rules for telehealth coding. Due to the public health emergency, CMS has changed HIPAA guidance, cost-sharing rules and documentation requirements for new and established patients via telehealth. In addition, there are other payable communication-based technology services - telephone calls, on-line E/M and quick virtual check-in services - that are subject to updates. With all these new regulations, keeping current on the rules is a major task for most medical practices. How can the average medical practice stay ahead of it all?

After this FREE webinar, you will be able to:

- The most recent Medicare updates for telehealth
- How to select the correct level of service, place of service and modifier
- What other communications-based technology services can be billed
